(Chadron)-Tuesday evening, the senate approved a measure to avert the fiscal cliff, however many will notice a decrease in paychecks.

The Social Security rate originally dropped back in 2011 to what was the former 4.2%, it was a plan always expected to be a short term deal.

We want to hear from you the listener on how the Social Security tax increase will affect your budget, and if you will have to start changing the ways you spend money. E-mail us your response to news@chadrad.com.
