RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) - A June trial date has been set for a Rapid City man accused of shooting a stranger in the head during a house party last April.

Twenty-year-old Kelsey Reavis will have a three-day jury trial starting June 4.

Before then, the state is required to share audio tape evidence provided by a private investigator with the defense counsel.

Reavis is accused of shooting 28-year-old Christopher Levin with a .45 caliber pistol after a confrontation at the house party. He has pleaded not guilty to attempted murder and two alternate counts of aggravated assault in the April 28 shooting.

Reavis faces a maximum sentence of 25 years in prison if convicted.
