(Neb.)-Experts Offer Tips To Feedlot Operators

By: Roxie Graham-Marski Posted at: 02/11/2013 09:20 AM

GERING, Neb. (AP) - Feedlot operators in Nebraska and Iowa can get advice this month from experts about dealing with high feed costs and drought.

The annual beef feedlot roundtables will be held Feb. 19-21 in Gering, Holdrege and West Point. The events will be broadcast to locations in Iowa.

The sessions will focus on the latest in feedlot health, nutrition and economics. The event is sponsored by University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension, Iowa State University Extension and the Nebraska Beef Council.

The presenters include a mix of university and industry experts who will offer tips on dealing with the current high feed prices and what alternatives exist.

Registration costs $30 ahead of time or $40 at the door. More details are available online at <http://panhandle.unl.edu>.
