HOT SPRINGS, S.D. (ASSOCIATED PRESS) - A man suspected of killing his father in a Montana cold case has been arrested in South Dakota.

Officers with the Fall River County Sheriff's Office and Hot Springs Police Department took 23-year-old Adam Hatfield into custody while he was working at a convenience store in the southwestern South Dakota city on Wednesday.

The complaint accusing Hatfield of deliberate homicide in the 2008 death of his 49-year-old father, Matt Hatfield, was filed Monday in Montana's Butte-Silver Bow County. Authorities say Adam Hatfield has been living in the Smithwick area southeast of Hot Springs for the past two months.

It was not immediately clear if he had obtained an attorney. An extradition hearing is scheduled Friday in Hot Springs.
