CHEYENNE, Wyo. (ASSOCIATED PRESS) - The governor of South Dakota plans to participate in a business forum that Wyoming Gov. Matt Mead is holding in Cheyenne in November.

Mead's office says South Dakota Gov. Dennis Daugaard (DOO'-gahrd) intends to speak about economic development strategies at the business forum Nov. 19th in Cheyenne.

Mead says Daugaard has developed a plan for workforce development in his state. He says both Wyoming and South Dakota are seeing similar growth and similar challenges.

This year's forum marks the second time that Mead has partnered with the Wyoming Business Alliance/Wyoming Heritage Foundation to discuss economic development strategies and business success stories.
