The Mari Sandoz High Plains Heritage Center is still taking submissions for its 2nd Annual Public Art Show, which begins its nearly 3-month run tomorrow.

Exhibit coordinator Stephanie Alfred says anyone can submit photos for the show title Come See What I Saw.

PLAY SOUNDBITE

Alfred says the only absolute requirement for a photo to be entered for Come See What I Saw is that it was taken in Nebraska.

Although today is the entry deadline, photos were accepted as much as a couple weeks after the deadline last year with over 50 eventually received.

Sandoz Center Director Laurie Sinn says late entries will be accepted again this year, but with ones coming in after today likely being displayed downtown by the new owner of the Bean Broker, Dave Feddersen.

Entries for Come See What I Saw should be taken to the Sandoz Center.
