A 28-year-old man has denied charges stemming from a fatal shooting in south Cheyenne.

The Wyoming Tribune Eagle reports Brian M. Sears appeared in District Court on Thursday and pleaded not guilty to attempted second-degree murder and manufacturing/delivery of a controlled substance.

Sears is accused of shooting and killing 22-year-old Connor Tarr after Tarr and a man named Cameron Scott stabbed him during a struggle Dec. 6. Police say Sears then shot at Scott's car as the man was trying to get away.

Scott, who has pleaded guilty to aggravated assault and battery, said the altercation began when Tarr tried to steal Sears' marijuana.
