LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - Beginning this week, Nebraska hunters can enter the Nebraska Super Tag Lottery for a shot at a four-species permit.

The nonrefundable lottery application fee costs $25. The tag is valid in 2013 and 2014 and has a bag limit of one elk of either sex, one deer of either sex, one antelope of either sex and two turkeys (only toms and bearded hens may be taken in the spring).

The application deadline is July 5. Each hunter is limited to one entry, and only Nebraska residents are eligible. The winner will be drawn later in July.

The winner will be allowed to hunt with any legal weapon in any open hunting unit during the general hunting season for each species.
